... I was born and reared as a full fledged Hoosier among the sticks and swamps, of old Indiana. Grandfather Yount was German of the Pennsylvania type?. He had a brother (cousin) Dan that owned a woolen mill on the banks of the Wa-ah on the Wabash River, in the pioneer days. His uncle brother Andrew had a woolen mill on the Wea; a cousin Dan had a woolen mill on Sugar Creek at Yountsville. Wm. Rev[illegible]. My people are all poor – financially ... none very bright, a few honest, and all lazy. All born Republicans, and none ever changed but one. Some of the older generations were periodically, fanatically, religious, but no doubt regained conciousness before checking out.

Grandfather's name was Henry ... Father's name was Bowen I. Both died 1873

I have some relatives, Younts and Platts near Champaign, Illinois. The country is full of them. We believe strongly in multiplying and replenishing the earth.

Yours very truly.

4. Walter Newman

John S. Newman's mother died when he was 1 year old. In March 1807 he came to Wayne County, Ind. to live with his grandparents, Andrew and Elizabeth (Waymire) Hoover

1827 entered his uncle David Hoover's office as deputy clerk. Studied law and admitted to Bar in 1828. Practiced law in Centerville until 1860; then removed to Indianapolis. Was also in mercantile business in Centerville for several years under firm name Hannah and Newman.

1834-35 represented Wayne County in legislature. 1850 elected delegate to Constitutional Convention and served on committee to put proposed constitution in legal form. 1861 elected President Indiana Central R.R., in which capacity he served until 1866.

When moved to Indianapolis in 1860, became President Merchants National Bank and so served until time of retirement from active business in 1877.

At time of marriage settled in Centerville and lived in same house 20 years. Both were Quakers but were Methodists after moving to Indianapolis.

October 1, 1877 they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Arrangement & decorations partly as follows: (Indianapolis paper) In the small waiting room across the hall the most elaborate decorations of the occasion was placed. It was the contribution of Mr. Calvin Fletcher and wife. From the chandelier were suspended ears of rich golden corn and beneath them, and touching them, on a tray, lay a golden squash split into halves, surrounded by yellow apples, sweet potatoes and maple leaves. On a tray was an original poem in neat manuscript which reflects credit on the heads and hearts of the contributors. The concluding stanzas were:-

In you today we see the fruit of life's spring morning wisely spent,
Of toil some hours in summer heat with honest hearts and high intent.
And when the reaper comes to glean his ripest sheaves of human life,
He'll find no purer here, I ween, than Judge John Newman and his wife.

Was in woolen mill in Ohio northeast of Union. He with his brother Davis operated the first woolen mill in Indianapolis by remodeling an old building on Michigan Road. He went to Indianapolis in 1846, or between that time and 1848. After his death in 1857 the brother John joined Davis. His was the first woolen mill in Indianapolis." He was good to the poor and broad minded."

Rosanna Waymire b. in Germany about 1761, d. northeast of Union, Ohio at the home place in the valley of the Stillwater River Aug. 16, 1814. She married George Yount (Jount in Va.) in Randolph Co. N. Carolina, presumably, who was born in Germany about 1760; came to America while yet a small child, and died on the homestead near Union

"They shared the trials and hardships of life in a new country until the time of death."

They raised a large family. All their children were born in North Carolina, unless probably John who may have been born in Pennsylvania.

In fall of 1801 they migrated from N. Carolina to Ohio, then a Territory. The first winter in Ohio was spent near Lebanon. In the spring of 1802 they moved to the Stillwater valley where they resided till death

According to Jacob Yount's record they were, at time of death "76" or 80 years old."

John Smith Newman's mother died when he was 1 year old. In March 1807 he came to Wayne County, Ind. to live with his grandparents – Andrew and Elizabeth (Waymire) Hoover.

1827 entered his uncle David Hoover's office as Deputy Clerk. Studied law, and admitted to the Bar in 1828. Practiced law in Centerville until 1860; then removed to Indianapolis. Was also in mercantile business in Centerville for several years under firm name of Hannah and Newman.

1834-35 represented Wayne County in state legislature. 1850 elected delegate to Constitutional Convention, and served on committee to put proposed constitution in legal form. 1851 elected President Indiana Central R.R. in which capacity he served until 1865.

When he moved to Indianapolis in 1860 became President Merchants National Bank and so served until time of retirement from active business in 1877

At time of marriage settled in Centerville and lived in same house 30 years. Both he and his wife were Quakers, but were Methodists after moving to Indianapolis

October 1, 1877, they celebrated their golden wedding anniversary. Arrangements and decorations on this occasion were partly described as follows: (Indianapolis paper). - In the small waiting room across the hall the most elaborate decorations of the occasion were placed. It was the contribution of Mr. Calvin Fletcher and wife. From the chandelier were suspended ears of rich golden corn and beneath them, and touching them, on a tray, lay a golden squash split in halves, surrounded by yellow apples, sweet potatoes and maple leaves.

On a tray was an original poem in neat manuscript which reflects credit on the heads and hearts of the contributors. The concluding stanza was:-

In you today we see the fruit of life's spring morning wisely spent,
Of toilsome hours in summer heat with honest hearts and high intent,
And when the reaper comes to glean his choicest sheaves of human life,
He'll find no purer here, I ween, than Judge John Newman and his wife.
